

MANGU & MISSION

Nelson & Rennae de Freitas

Missionaries serving Dominican Republic and Southwestern Assemblies of God University

MISSIONARY MULTIPLICATION

Pastor Miguel at baptism in Haiti

Jeff is on his way to Africa

It all started with just the two of us 25 years ago when we began this missionary journey. We dreamed of telling every child in Dominican Republic about Jesus! However, it turns out that our dreams were too small. God had plans to extend our dreams far beyond the borders of our little island.

Guillermo ministering to kids in Guatemala

Autumn just arrived in Ukraine

Dorka in the jungles of Ecuador

Noemi in Argentina

And these are just a few of the many faces of missionary multiplication. These six are the most recent. God took two willing hearts and has multiplied our obedience into an army reaching the nations. Some are Dominicans that have responded to the missions call and others are our students from Southwestern Assemblies of God University. All this multiplication is possible as God takes your support through prayer and finances and multiplies the work to extend throughout the whole wide world!

Mangu is a traditional dish from the Dominican Republic, consisting of green plantain bananas boiled, mashed and seasoned with butter or oil. Dominicans credit Mangu, with keeping them filled and fueled throughout the day. It is said that the name was given to this dish after an American Soldier was served a portion and responded by saying, "Man, good!"